Teacher Notes

Have I mentioned how much I LOVE reading month? In case you missed that memo - I LOVE READING MONTH! I ran out of time today to add up their minutes (for many of them) and will give them their totals on Monday if they didn't get that today. I'm sorry! They are jumping virtue windows like crazy and it's SO awesome to see their excitement! We got caught up finishing Aidan of Oren today and totally ran out of time! Isn't that life, though, when we get lost in a book? Next week, instead of a weekly minute goal, they have a "READ-O" bingo board to hit bingos! If they get a cover-all, they will get their "bonus" goal for the week. We will still have our daily small goals of Monday, Wednesday and Friday for minutes. We still have room for surprise guest readers for the month - please sign up? Thanks!

We will continue with "Finding Evidence in Text" on a daily basis! They are getting better every day.

In Math, we had our Data and Probability test on Tuesday when I was gone. They retook in on Thursday after I explained a few things that they all got wrong or misread. I took the better of their 2 scores and that was their grade. On this test, much of it was reading/listening to directions. That's what NWEA is all about -reading accurately and answering appropriately.

In Social Studies, we finished our West Region packets and corrected them. These are ready to study from. We will continue learning about the West throughout next week. Test is Tuesday, March 27.

In Religion, we continued talking about Lent this week and the difference between fasting, praying and almsgiving. Some of them decided to change their Lenten devotions.

April 14th Auction update

At St. Paul School, we do a HUGE fundraiser every year, and in order to make it happen successfully, we need all families to help out! There are opportunities to help with the hands-on portion (decorating, etc.) but what we need all of you to help with is a donation. It can be monetary, you can go in with another family or 2 to create a "basket," or you can donate on your own. I am hoping that our class can have 100% participation. If you have an item that you can send in, please send it in asap! It doesn't have to be huge or complete, because we can add it to other items to complete a basket. Please let me know if you have any questions.
