Teacher Notes

We are well into our reading goals, and all have achieved at least one of their goals! Some have reached 3 goals already! Way to go! WE dogoals on M-W-F, and their goals are written on their reading logs. I do not make these up - every goal, for every child, is discussed between the 2 of us. We take into account their nightly schedules in your family routines, their other homework they juggle, whether they have achieved the previous goal, why or why not and how do we adjust the next goal accordingly? I added a new goal so that there is the possibility of success for all students, especially if they are absent and miss the goal setting/achieving day. We set a weekly goal for total minutes, based on last week's total. If they hit that, it's possible for them to move twice on Fridays! We still have room for surprise guest readers for the month - please sign up? Thanks!

One of the main things we are working on right now, in all subjects, is "Finding Evidence in Text." This is a skill that is proving to be a challenge for the kids and we will be continuing this into this coming week.

In Math, we have our Data and Probability test on Tuesday.

In Social Studies, we finished our West Region packets. They will bring these home on Tuesday and will be their study guide for the test on the 27th. They will begin their projects tomorrow. The landforms of the West Region teach us the Science part of our curriculum.

In Religion, we have been talking about Lent and preparing for Easter. Friday, we went to Reconciliation and spent time in Adoration. It was a bit different because there was no Benediction and there were a LOT of parishioners in the church with us. It was very cool to see that...

April 14th Auction update

At St. Paul School, we do a HUGE fundraiser every year, and in order to make it happen successfully, we need all families to help out! There are opportunities to help with the hands-on portion (decorating, etc.) but what we need all of you to help with is a donation. It can be monetary, you can go in with another family or 2 to create a "basket," or you can donate on your own. I am hoping that our class can have 100% participation. If you have an item that you can send in, please send it in asap! It doesn't have to be huge or complete, because we can add it to other items to complete a basket.

Our project has changed from a chair to a lamp - I will send pictures this week!
